Categories: Mom's Corner

Bye Bye Mindy

Cliff's niece Mindy has been visitng with us since July 13th. She flew out to CA with us from VT.

Today was her last day here. We drove her this afternoon to LAX. We had to wait in long lines at Southwest and the service at Southwest sucked. They told us Mindy's luggage may not make it to the plane and that it may show up on the next flight out. If that happened, they could either wait for the next flight or have the luggage FedExpressed to their home at their own expense. They told me the luggage needs to be checked in at least 2 hours before departure. Sheesh!! We waited at least that amount in line. What a crappy airline. I have never flown Southwest and after this experience, I will try to avoid using them.

Me and the girls got a pass so we could walk with Mindy to her gate.

It was a tight time frame but with no time to spare she walked right onto the plan.

We had so much fun with Mindy. We all cried and watched her plane take off down the runway. The girls cried through the airport missing Mindy.

We love you sweetheart and we can't wait till you come visit us again - sooner rather than later!!

Date: 15-08-2009