What is that in your mouth?

This morning I was checking Savannah's teeth after she brushed them to make sure she did a good job. I noticed a white thing protruding behind her last visible molar on the lower right side. I felt it and it felt like a tooth coming in. I think her 6 year molars are coming in!! Right on time, her 6th birthday was March 8th!! She hasn't complained about any teething pain at all.

Once again another reminder that my sweet Savannah is no longer my baby girl ((sigh)) She is my big girl now!!
