The Triplets went to the Post Office for the first time today!!

I had to mail Savannah's broken camera back to Fisher Price for a replacement and I took the triplets with me this morning. Savannah was in preschool.

The postal service staff remembered when I was pregnant with the triplets. One sweet employee, Juanita, even sent me a Congradulations card when I gave birth to the triplets.

Every time we travel I take our boxes of clothes to this post office to mail to Vermont. The guy who usually helps me with the boxes was dumbfounded and amazed when he saw the triplets. We laughed and I told him that was why I had to ship so many boxes of clothes because I have 4 girls. It was a riot!!

Anyway, the girls had a blast waitin in line and playing with postage stuff.
