Categories: Mom's Corner

Miranda is digging her potty chair!!

I have been really working with Miranda on potty training this week. For the past few days she has been peeing 50% in the potty chair and 50% wearing diapers during the day and wearing diapers at night. Today she has not worn a diaper at all and she has peed on the potty chair and has not had any accidents. She also pooped in the potty chair for the first time today. I am so proud of her. She walked in, said she had to poop, sat on her potty chair and pooped. Just like that!! I am hoping she will potty train fully in the next couple of weeks. She has plenty of cute little panties that she loves to wear.

Amanda and Maryssa are sort of potty training but they are going to take a little longer. Every time Miranda sits on the potty chair they like to sit down too so hopefully they might learn from Miranda. My goal is to have everyone potty trained by the Fall 2009 before they start preschool. The preschool requires them to be potty trained. They would be going to preschool twice a week in the mornings.

Just a couple of days ago Miranda had taken off her diaper in her room. She had pooped in her diaper and didn't want to have the poopy diaper on her. When she took it off the poop got everywhere. Ugh. It was so gross. So hopefully we are seeing the end of diapers for her soon!!

Date: 22-11-2008