Big Mile Stone for Savannah today!!

I had an appointment today at Savannah's school for Savannah's annual speech evaluation. Corrie, my friend, watched the triplets for me while I was in the meeting.

Savannah's speech teacher is Darcy. Savannah was with us at the meeting as well as Savannah's teacher, Miss Tarbell, and the school psychologist. We went over the test scores, from when Savannah was 3 years old in 2007 to currently at 6 years old in Kindergarten. and her receptive language is average to above average. Her expressive is average. She scored a little low in certain expressive areas.

The end result is that Savannah has progressed so well, making it by leaps and bounds since she was 3 years old..... she is graduating from speech!! We did discuss the idea that I would like a progress report the 1st trimester of 1st grade to make sure she hasn't fallen behind and to re-evaluate if she needs more speech.

I cried my eyes out. At that very moment, I was the proudest momma on earth!! I love you my dear, sweet, smart and amazing Savannah!! I love you!!
