

Categories: Mom's Corner

Kindy Klass

After I dropped the triplets off to preschool, I took Savannah to school and then surprised her by volunteering in her class today!! She was blown away.

Today I sat with her group of "yellow apples" There are groups of 6 kids that are different colored apples..red apples, yellow apples, blue apples, etc.

The teacher asked me to help the kids with an art project that required tracing, cutting, and gulp....PAINTING. I have to tell you, I am horrible with paint. I get it everywhere else except where the paint was supposed to go.

The paint colors were brown and red. It was a very messy job. The kids dipped sponges in the paint to paint their art projects. The art projects came out really cute..they were hens with little skirts and hats.

I was so proud to volunteer today. It was so much fun seeing Savannah at recess and watching her interact with her classmates and friends.

Date: 29-04-2010