

Categories: Amanda

La Brea Tarpits

Today Savannah was off of school in observance of Lincoln's Birthday. So today I planned a fun day for the girls at La Brea Tarpits.

I negotiated a discount group rate for La Habra Moms Club. About 12 other children and 6 other moms joined us. It was a lot of fun.

The girls got to see skeletons of saber tooth tigers, mammoth elephant, and all sorts of different prehistoric animals. We saw a very interesting educational film about the theory of how the prehistoric animals got stuck in 4 inches of tar and how they ceased because they couldn't get themselves out of the tar because it was so sticky. We also saw a real excavation in action! It was about 20 feet deep and they had an observation deck.

Afterwards, my friend Corrie and her kids came over for lunch and a play date. It was a fun day!

Date: 08-02-2010