

Categories: Mom's Corner

Parent Teacher Conference for Savannah today

This week is Parent Teacher Conference at Savannah's school. This means all of the kids get out of school early all week long and they get Friday off. Savannah's late bird class has been moved to early bird and that has been a real pain. Friday I took all of the girls to Disneyland and we had lots of fun!!

I met with Savannah's teacher today. Savannah knows all of her alphabet by site and sound. She knows most of her shapes except for cylinder, rectangle and cone. I will work with her on those shapes. She can count to 26 and she will be required to count to 30 by the end of Kindy so I would say she is doing great with her numbers seeing that she has only been in school for a couple of months now.

Savannah knows how to spell and read most "word" colors. She also knows her colors by sight too.

The teacher says she is doing great in school and to keep up the good work!! I am so proud of my sweet little Kindergartner!!

Date: 19-11-2009