Preschool Open House

The triplets preschool had their open house tonight. They had a bake sale fundraiser and I donated rice crispy treats with cute Nemo rings on them. They were also serving tacos and quesadillas for dinner as a fundraiser.

We visited the classroom at about 7pm. The room was decorated with all of the kids' artwork in the theme of a carnival. It was so fun to see the triplets crafts and artwork all around the room. There were 2 other sets of twins, their mothers are friends of mine. One of the twins' mommies gave birth to her twins the day before I gave birth to the triplets and her room was next door to my room in the hospital. So her twins birthday is August 10th. She remembers me giving birth on August 11th because her dr., Dr. Rocca could not release her because he was in the OR doing my C-Section!!

I bought some yummy goodies from the bake sale and some tacos and quesadillas for all of us. It was a cold night and perfect for the baked goods to comfort everyone.
