Rollie Pollies and bugs!!

Lately the girls have been fascinated with bugs. They are in the backyard exploring under rocks and bricks looking for all kinds of different bugs to collect in the special bug houses.

This is silk worm season so Savannah's preschool has been focusing teaching them about caterpillars turning into cocoons and then into butterflies. They are also learning about polliwogs and how they grow up to be frogs.

Last week the girls were so proud. They had collected over 50 rollie pollies and brought the container in the house to show them to me. They forgot to take the container back outside and they left the container - with the lid off - and the rollie pollies got out and are living amongst us in the house. Eeeeek!!!

We are teaching them not to touch spiders and Daddy Cliff has taught them that worms are fine to play with but don't play with a worm that has legs, they are dangerous!!
