Savannah's 1st day as a Daisy

Today was Savannah's 1st day as a Daisy Girl Scout. We have 14 girls in our troop. Some are Kindy Kids from Savannah's class and the other Kindy class, some are 1st graders and some are from another school, Jordan School.

The meeting began at 1:30pm, right after school. We all met in the multi purpose room and then at 1:45pm we all moved outside and enjoyed the nice weather. Today it was 77 degrees and sunny.

Since I don't have a babysitter, I brought the triplets to the meeting with me. It made it fun and challenging to have the triplets at the meeting while I was co-leading the troop. The other co-leader, Lyn, is AWESOME. She was a girl scout for many years and remembers all of the girl scout songs, the Girl Scout Promise and all of the fun activities the troops do. Our troop is so lucky to have her!!

Today the girls made and decorated daisy necklaces with their names on the to help all of us get to know every one's name. They also traced each other's hands, cut out their traced hand and glued it to the Girl Scout Promise Poem that they need to learn to earn their first patch, which will be in a month at their Investiture Ceremony.

We had snacks, sang a song, learned what makes a good Daisy and then finished the meeting with a friendship circle squeeze of each hands.

We will meet 2 Mondays a month.
