Categories: Mom's Corner

Stoneham Zoo

We spent the day at the Stoneham Zoo. It was such a wonderful zoo. It was so hot today..ugh! There is a huge heatwave going on in New England right now.

We met up with Chery, Lee and their twin 2 year old daughters, Lilly and Ana. We enjoyed seeing all of the animals then we hit the playground in the zoo. What a great playground. Then the girls had to hit the bathroom,,,ugh that was a huge endeavor trying to find and use the bathrooms in 100+ heat!

We then enjoyed a few kiddie rides and then went to Friendly's for lunch. They were too crowded for us to sit down so we grabbed something quick at the convenience store.

There was a great kiddie water park that I wanted to take the girls to, but it was so crowded there was no parking. We had a nice drive along a pretty lake.

Then we drove back to the Woburn Marriott and we did some shopping at Target. The first order of business was buying a crap load of water bottles so I could freeze them and use them throughout the day through this scorching heat. whew! I got some munchies, some sand pails for the girls and a back pack for me because we are going to be going into the city and I need a backpack to carry our stuff.

Date: 17-07-2010