The triplets are getting a tutor

I met a really nice girl at Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory in La Habra. She goes to Biola University and does part time tutoring and babysitting.

I interviewd her and we worked out a very reasonable rate that I can (barely) afford. She comes Mon. 12pm-1pm and Wed. 12pm-1pm and she will be doing Preschool tutoring.

So today was their first lesson with Britteny and it went really well. Their attention span is about 15 minutes so they can sit at the table for 15 minutes and learn then they turn into squirmy wormies and they need to get up and play. Then about 15 minutes later they are back at the table learning again.

It is a little chaotic and I help Britteny. It is working out well for the triplets and for me.
