Toothless strikes again!

A few weeks ago Miranda's head collided into Savannah's upper right tooth. It knocked Savannah's tooth loose. She has been eating soft foods in hopes of keeping her loose tooth in her mouth. I did try pulling it and she said it hurt so we left it alone in hopes that maybe it would tighten up.

Her two upper front teeth haven't come in yet and the tooth that is now loose is her favorite tooth to chew with. She sort of looks like a toothless Dracula these days....LOL!!

This afternoon she came to me and said "Tada!" she pulled her tooth out!! She told me that she wanted to keep this tooth and that she didn't want to put it under her pillow for the tooth fairy to come. She wants to keep her tooth. She does believe in the tooth fairy, but she wants to keep her teeth now, she has no desire to get the money from the tooth fairy.

Now Savannah looks like she is all gums. She is happy because she says now she can chew much better since the loose tooth is no longer there. Hopefully her two front upper teeth will come in soon.
