We enrolled Savannah in Kindergarten!

I dropped off all of the paperwork to enroll her into Kindergarten last Friday. I have to take Savannah to a "Kindergarten Roundup" appt. on May 7th. This evaluates all of the kids to make sure they are ready for kindergarten.

There was so much paperwork to complete for the enrollment process. I had to get a certification from the dentist that Savannah has been getting check ups and that her teeth are in good condition and she is getting good oral care.

I took Savannah for her 5 year physical with the pediatrician. Savannah had to get 4 vaccination shots, a prick on the finger to check for anemia and a TB test. This was part of the requirement for Savannah to attend Kindergarten.

The Kindergarten classes have a early bird session from 8:30am-11:50am and a late bird session from 10:30 to 1:50pm. All of the kids attend the early bird session for a month. They will assign the kids either a early or late session depending on how well the children do with the early morning session.

I am going to cry my eyes out when I take Savannah to her first day of Kindergarten. She is growing up so fast....
