

Categories: Amanda

Wow, all of the lights!!

Today our neighbors, Amy and Rob, came over for dinner. I told them that today was the last day the Electric Parade would be at Disneyland. We decided that we would go see it tonight.

So, we left 3 hours early to make sure we got a good place to watch the parade. Could you believe there was no room to sit!! We lucked out and found a handicap area, since Amanda has club radian hand and she loses balance, she qualifies to be in the handicap area. We got an upfront and great spot. We had to wait over 2 hours for the parade. I brought lots of dessert snacks and drinks for the girls. Finally about 30 minutes before the parade which happens to be their bedtime, at 8:30pm they all crashed out. I had brought their warm jackets and thick, warm blankets. They were all bundled up with full bellies and crashed out.

They woke up right before the parade and loved watching it. I am so glad Amy came with us. We had such a wonderful time.

Date: 25-04-2010